Now Government

Explains About the Explanation

IF THE AMERICAN people are ever driven into a case of hysterics it will be by an item like the one the Wall Street Journal dug up yesterday.

With all the commercial newspapers of the nation struggling to find newsprint, at a time when we are using 15 per cent more paper than is being manufactured, the Wall Street Journal reports that the federal government is launching a new publishing venture.

It hasn't been named, but it'll be a weekly magazine for businessmen. Its publisher is the Defense Production Administration, which will peddle it at $2.50 a year.

For this $2 the "mag" will explain why the administration puts out certain production controls — thereby explaining previous explanations and making everything clear to bewildered business men. The magazine's editors and writers will be paid by the Commerce Department.

Mailing costs will be free, under the "franking" privilege.

It won't compete with private publications, says one of its promoters, because: "There won't be any criticism of the government in this magazine."

Shortage of newsprint will be any handicap. Government priority will simply reach out and steal some more from the private supply that has already been raided plenty to build up the paper blizzard that is storming out of Washington these days.

Before you break down in a case of hysterics I think you ought to hear my personal explanation of what I think is going on.

The Washington bureaucrats have waked up to the fact their own filing cabinets are full, so there's no place to put anything unless it's dumped on the public. And we're squawking because our own private file for Government Printing Office material — the waste-basket — is overflowing. It stays that way from the time the Post Office opens until it closes — and there isn't an editor on earth who ever opens that kind of mail.

It's always "explaining" something or other.

And now we've got a magazine coming up which will "explain" all the "explanations."

To ask men to go out in the woods and cut down trees and make paper to put this kind of writing on, is nonsense — and if we Americans haven't got a case of hysterics it won't be long.

Congress to Have Voice in Troop Moves

Washington, March 17 (AP) — Senator Russell (D-Ga.) said today he expects President Truman to consult congress about future ground force assignments to Europe if the senate approves a pending troops resolution.

Russell, who heads the armed services committee, told reporters he puts this interpretation on two resolutions approving the sending of four more divisions abroad but calling for congressional approval of any more contingents.

The "congressional approval" provision of the resolution promised to become the core of debate the senate will resume on the troops questions Monday, Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) said he will speak on the issue.

Russell and Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the foreign relations committee were pressing for a speedy and overwhelming vote for the resolutions. Connally said he thinks there is a "reasonable chance" of completing action before an Easter recess.

Russell advised against any attempts to amend the resolutions, although some administration supporters wanted to strike out altogether the section calling for congressional approval.

"The quicker we can pass these resolutions with the largest possible vote the better it will be for the security of the United States," Russell said.

Connally said he is ready for an immediate vote.

Russell said that to him "congressional approval" would mean consultation by the President with 96 persons in the foreign relations and armed services committees of both houses and the joint chiefs of staff.

This would have to come about, Georgia senator said, whenever the President wished to send even so much as a combat team in addition to the six divisions he has assigned to the North Atlantic defense force headed by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Two divisions already in Germany are included in the six.

Britisher Said to Have Made Millions in Resale of U. S. Surplus Army Property

Washington, March 17 (AP) — The needle of a house investigating committee's compass pointed back today to George Dawson, a Briton said to have made $100,000,000 in the resale of U. S. army surplus property.

Investigators for the house committee were seeking to learn if this is the same George Dawson linked by presidential military aide Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan with John Maragon, one-time White House familiar. Maragon was convicted of perjury after a "five-percenter" probe in 1949 by a senate committee.

Senate investigators introduced a 1948 letter from Vaughan to General Clyde Hysong, then on duty in Europe. It said, in part:

"This will introduce my good friend John Maragon, who is representing George Dawson and company, and who is interested in purchasing materials from the foreign liquidation service."

Vaughan told the senate committee he knew nothing of Dawson and was only doing Maragon a favor.

Rep. Bonner (D-NC), chairman of the house group, said last night his committee wants to question Charles Poletti, former U. S. military government in Italy and one-time lieutenant governor of New York, and Paul Griffith, former assistant secretary of defense.

A government witness testified yesterday that Poletti and Griffith represented firms connected with resales of surplus material at fabulous profits.

Bonner also said subpoenas had been issued for Morris Klein, of the Oakland Truck Sales Co., of Pittsburgh, and other Bonner did not name.

But, he said, Klein and the others are "all in Europe now" pressing damage claims resulting from a recent army freeze on further transactions in scarce surplus equipment. The army froze the material for military use.

Sen. Fulbright Plans to End RFC Probe

Washington, March 17 (AP) — Senator Fulbright (D-ARK.) said today he plans to end Monday his probe for cases of influence yielding in reconstruction finance corporation (RFC) loans.

The chairman of the investigating senate banking subcommittee turned his back firmly on an offer of additional funds from congress to keep the inquiry going.

However, the three Republican members of the subcommittee said they will try to override him in a showdown vote possibly later next week. They contend some sensational developments turned up during the inquiry have not been fully explored.

Fulbright insisted the committee had completed its work. It has "amply proved" that political favoritism has tainted RFC affairs, and that an "influence ring" involved has White House contacts, Fulbright said.

To be labor the point further could only serve political ends, he added.

Fulbright told reporters he will renew in a senate speech his plea that congress launch a followup inquiry into the morals and ethics of other government agencies, and congress itself.

He said he will also urge again the creation of a "nonpolitical" commission of distinguished citizens and congressional leaders to conduct that inquiry.

It's a Great Day for the Irish

By The Associated Press

America, a country built by people from many nations, today honors St. Patrick, the patron saint of Ireland. O'Reillys, McCarthys, Murphys and the like will step out briskly in parades planned in many cities.

The day gives young and old a chance to brighten up things with the wearing of the green.

In New York City, an estimated 90,000 persons will march up Fifth avenue — which will sport a green traffic ribbon instead of the usual white one. As city workmen said — well, the street needed a new traffic line, and let's give the marchers something to look at.

Among those reviewing the Manhattan parade will be Francis Cardinal Spellman and former New York Mayor William O'Dwyer, now U. S. ambassador to Mexico.

In Erin, N. Y. — near Elmira — 2,000 kellygreen envelopes, bearing Irish design, will be mailed by residents to educators. The envelopes will carry green threepenny stamps (issued recently to commemorate the American Bankers association).

In Boston, the day will be a dual bleared celebration. This also is the day the city celebrates the 175th anniversary of the evacuation of Boston by the British. About 250,000 persons are expected to gather in south Boston, and it will be hard to tell who is celebrating which anniversary.

In Los Angeles, Barry Fitzgerald — who won the 1951 Irish screen award of the Ancient Order of Hibernians in a nationwide poll — will be presented with a statuette of St. Patrick.

In Detroit, thousands of shamrocks and green apparel will make their appearance, although the celebration will have a somber note. Special ceremonies will honor Detroit's Irish dead — including the late Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy and Bishop Michael Gallagher.

Throughout the nation, the St. Patrick's day observances will include special masses and memorial services.

Some 30,000 persons are expected to take part in the parade at Newark, N. J. shamrocks and Easter lilies will be distributed. The day also will mark the opening of the Easter seal campaign for the New Jersey charity.

Capone Arrest Only Start in Tax Roundup

Washington, March 17 (AP) — A nationwide federal tax crackdown on racketeers was reported shaping up rapidly today. Informed sources said the filing of criminal charges against Ralph Capone was only the beginning.

These sources, asking not to be named, said a virtual barrage of tax claims — with criminal charges attached in many cases — are in the making as a result of three years of intensive investigations.

Names were withheld, partly because a tipoff to the quarry could cripple the drive, but it was made plain that some of the country's most notorious underworlders are tagged for tax actions, and soon.

Capone, brother of the late Chicago gangster Al Capone, was described as merely the first nationally known figure to be accused in the 1951 drive.

A few days before filing the criminal charges against him, however, the revenue bureau slipped heavy tax recovery claims on two Washington men with fortunes allegedly built on gambling enterprises, and a like claim for nearly $1,000,000 on the estate of another. The charges against Capone carry possible jail terms totaling 18 years.

One of the Washington men, Sam Beard, was indicted at the same time and an effort was planned for a criminal indictment against the other, Emmitt Warring. Lacking a countrywide reputation, these men had gone unmentioned in a senate crime committee probe.

The action against Capone stemmed directly from the initial federal use, in 1930, of the tax laws to jail hoodlums who had avoided conviction on other scores. Ralph got a three-year sentence then as this brother Al, who died in 1947, was later sent up for a 12-year term.

Figuring in the new accusations was $12,280.59 in unpaid taxes that were involved in Ralph's 1930 conviction. Ralph is charged, among other things, with trying to settle that, and another $97,000 in unpaid taxes, for $25,000 through falsely representing his ability to pay.

High School PTA to Meet, Review Work Carried Out

The Hope high school P. T. A. will have its next meeting in the school auditorium March 23rd at 7:30 p. m.

Day meetings this year have been interesting and constructive with the program chairman, Mrs. P. J. Holt presenting programs consisting of panel discussions, films, social dramas and buzz sessions in which parents, teachers and students participated thereby becoming better acquainted not only with one another but with the work of the Parent Teacher Association.

Through these programs we have learned how very important it is for parents and teachers to unite in bringing closer together the home, the school and the church so the youth of this community will become Christian educated citizens and leaders of tomorrow.

There are 225 on the membership roll many of whom are employed mothers and fathers who are also interested in the school where their children are receiving their education. This night meeting will give them the opportunity of becoming acquainted with the school faculty and many parents who are working together for the one great cause "Our Children's Birthright of Opportunity."

There will be no admission charge for the program that will display work done in the band, speech and music departments by the directors and their students.

Following the program there will be a social hour for all.

More Work on Highway 67 Is Scheduled

Little Rock, arch 17 (AP) — The Arkansas highway commission is going to spend most of its 1951 construction money — about $13,000,000 — on the primary road system. But it'll make an inspection trip before deciding just where not already committed funds are to go.

After the commission yesterday agreed on the "primary roads" policy, Highway Director J. C. Baker and Chief Engineer A. E. Johnson submitted a list of projects for early attention.

Several commissioners objected to the recommendations. Commissioner Truman Baker of Searcy complained that none of the proposed projects is in his district. Commissioners finally agreed on the inspection tour, to start next Wednesday, before doing any final programming.

J. A. Elliott of Fort Worth, division engineer for the U. S. bureau of public roads, told the commission the mobilization effort probably would prevent much secondary system work.

The commission then adopted resolutions to:

1. Advance construction plans for about $8,000,000 worth of work on the primary system programmed last year.

2. Commit all available federal aid primary funds to reconstruction of worn out stretches. These federal funds, plus state match money, was estimated to total more than $5,000,000.

3. Limit federal aid secondary road construction to $3,000,000 and such construction without federal aid to $1,000,000. These amounts would be distributed equally among the maintenance districts — an

Many People Who Migrated to America Soon Forgot the Old Country But Not the Irish

By ARTHUR EDSON
(For Hal Boyle)

Washington, March 17 (AP) — Sure, and it's blessed St. Pat's day again, with parading and a wearing of the green and Irishmen everywhere saying how great Irishmen are.

And every congressman who ever had an ancestor who ever put his foot on the old sod — and there are many of them — will be advertising that fact at length.

The Swedes come over here, the Germans come over here, the French, the Italians, the Austrians, the Poles and the Afghanistans come over here.

After a generation or two, the old country is forgotten.

But not with the Irish, never with the Irish. Why must the Irish always be so Irish?

No one knows for certain the answer to that question. But it may go far back into the history of Ireland, a country about the size of South Carolina, with a population about that of North Carolina.

A long, grand but bitter history, Ireland has a history of extreme poverty of gigantic emigrations, of eternal bickering if not down right fighting with the English.

From the start, the Irish came to this country.

Edward F. Roberts, who wrote "Ireland in America," claims the Irish never got full credit for the part they played in the revolution.

Texarkana Man Jailed for Taking Scrap Iron

City officers at 1 a. m. today arrested Thomas J. McCoy, 25-year-old Texarkana, Texas man, for theft of 900 pounds of scrap iron from the Arkansas Machine and Specialty Shop.

The officers were making a routine patrol when they saw an old model truck loaded with iron at 5th and Pine streets. They stopped the driver and an investigation revealed the iron, about $22 worth, was stolen from the local foundry.

Crime Probers Cite Ex-Convict for Perjury

New York, March 17 (AP) — U. S. senate crime investigators have wound up a week of turbulent testimony by local racketeers and politicians with the arrest on perjury charges of a former convict with no record.

But the arrest, which came yesterday with three witnesses testifying almost simultaneously, today appeared as only a prelude to further action.

Mayor William O'Dwyer's scheduled quizzing Monday.

Meanwhile, reports in two Chicago newspapers — the Tribune and the Sun-Times — said Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York would be called before the committee to share the spotlight with O'Dwyer.

In special dispatches from New York, the Chicago papers said Dewey would be questioned about gambling at Saratoga Springs, an upstate resort near Albany.

Dewey's secretary, James C. Hagerly, termed the story "wholly untrue."

Committee officials were not available for comment in New York city.

The reports of Dewey's appearance are based on testimony yesterday by Skelton-Police Superintendent John A. Gaffney and several other officers.

Gaffney told of a confidential survey of illegal gambling he ordered at Saratoga in 1947. He testified that nothing ever came of the report.

Committee members then questioned him whether he had informed Dewey of the conditions or if Dewey had received the report.

Gaffney said he himself did not go to Dewey and that he did not think Dewey received a copy of the report.

Later yesterday, the three witnesses contradicted each other in a tense courtroom shortly after a hoarse Frank Costello again gambled with a senate contempt citation by refusing to testify.

Louis Weber, 51, the former convict, was held in 125,000 bail after he denied ever visiting City Water Supply Commissioner James J. Moran at the latter's office.

Moran, already on the witness stand for about an hour, maintained previous statements that Weber visited him several times when he was first deputy fire commissioner.

Diplomats See Chance for Korean Peace

Tokyo, March 17 (AP) — United Nations commanders generally believe that Allied diplomats now in their first important chance since November to win an acceptable peace in Korea.

But in their view it is only a chance. It depends on the ability — but no concrete evidence — that Peiping and the Koreans might be ready to quit.

The results of the current offensive have given the Allies a temporary advantage. The Chinese have lost some of their best troops among an estimated 172,000 ground action casualties. U. N. forces have proved they cannot be driven off the peninsula except by great masses than the Reds have used.

For the first time since the Chinese struck in late November, the United Nations command is holding the northern North Korean army, the Allies hold the advantage.

General MacArthur emphatically Friday, however, the Communists have "suffered no decisive defeat." They withdrew from Peiping and parallel positions in readiness.

The Communists, therefore, would be ready to reach an acceptable peace at this time only if decided additional bloodletting wasn't worth the effort.

Military men believe this possibility is worth exploring.

The Allied advantage may increase in the next few weeks. These are some of the reasons.

1. Allied forces are operating about as far north as they can with present strength, and still with their voracious guns and tanks.

2. The Chinese are not willing to take losses in positions to their losses and losses during a relatively quiet period.

3. Winter, A. U. N. ally, over Communist losses from the last campaign.

'Things Going Well' in Korea Fighting

Tokyo, March 17 (AP) — Gen. MacArthur paid a surprise visit to the fighting front in Korea today and found "everything well."

The United Nations command jumped to within 2,000 yards of the battle line south of Chongju. More than 300,000 Chinese were massed along that line, last ditch defense of the battle must hold to stay below the 38th parallel.

Fitting Children For Life

A mother writes: "I have three small children. What shall I teach them? Well, I tell you I have taught them to fear God, keep the Commandments and watch behind their ears, the next most important thing to teach them is good manners, which are the open sesame to all doors in life through which they will want to pass. Good manners will carry one farther than looks or money or talent. They are a letter of credit that the world honors at sight. They turn our first impressions about every individual we meet and attract or repulse us. By a stranger's manners we make a snap judgment of his breeding, birth, background and social status, education, character, disposition and the kind of mother he or she was. Or, conversely, sometimes we are wrong. Manners are not invariably an index to the soul. There are rough diamonds who possess all of the major and minor virtues, but a hurrying world hasn't the time to polish them up, so they get passed by, and unless they have the most phenomenal brilliance, their worth is never recognized.

Start in Infancy
So begin in the cradle teaching your children good manners. Teach them how to eat, how to enter a room, how to speak, what to say and how to say it, how to pull a lady's chair how to help an old woman get in and out of a car. It is trouble to make Johnny use the right fork when he wants to pig it. You have to tell Sam a million times not to speak with his mouth full, not to wear his hat in the house, not to neglect a thousand little courteous observances. It takes time and patience and precept upon precept and being overbearing on the job to teach children good manners.

A famous psychologist once estimated that it requires five years' hard work to teach children good manners, but in the end great is the mother's reward. She has given her children the greatest charm they can possibly possess and she has laid the foundations of their success.

Next, teach your children how to get along with other people. On our ability to smooth the fur of our fellow creatures the right way, and make ourselves personally gratified, then depends our happiness in life. Popularity isn't the reward of vanity. It is what makes us or breaks us. People will do things for us because they like us that they wouldn't do for us to save our lives. And if they dislike us, they will pull us down every time we get a foothold on the ladder of success.

Most mothers are by way of thinking that if a child has a cantankerous disposition there is nothing that can be done about it. It is just too bad that Johnny always quarrels with the other children and every game he is in breaks up in a row. And Mother sighs instead of getting busy and making Johnny play fair and give and take, and not assume the right to run the whole show.

Don't Raise a Misfit
I have known any number of competent men and women who could never hold a good job because they could not get along with the other employees. I have known many professional people whose careers were wrecked because they were always saying or doing something to offend their best clients. And we all know that at the bottom of every unhappy marriage is the wife or husband who has never learned the art of getting along with people.

Then teach your children how to take it. Life isn't easy for any of us. Every job is hard and discouraging, but those who have the courage to stand up and fight and who come up smiling after every rebuff of fortune always win out in the end. It is the winners and the complainers and those who throw up their hands and quit when the sledding gets difficult who are failures.

Teach them to finish what they start. Make the baby finish its bottle. Make the toddler complete his block house. Teach your children a pride in doing good work and never lying down on their jobs. You can't down the man and woman who have patience and grit enough to stick to the thing they have undertaken. The failures are those who lit from one failure to another and do nothing well.

Teach your children these things and you will have fitted them for life.

A black and white illustration of a person in a doorway looking out at a night scene. The person is standing in a doorway, looking out towards the left. Outside, there is a crescent moon in the sky and a car parked on the street. The scene is dark and grainy, with a high-contrast, almost stencil-like appearance. The person is wearing a dark jacket and light-colored pants. The doorway is framed by a simple wooden structure. The overall mood is somber and contemplative.
